

The Spaulding Award

The Spaulding Award honors the leadership, energy, and vision Hank Spaulding personified in his work and at the MIT Center for Real Estate. It is given to a graduate whose work in the industry has enriched the profession.

This award is intended to acknowledge work that exemplifies the tradition of excellence that is fostered by the Center. The context is broad, and this award can acknowledge a project, an industry innovation or a leadership initiative.

Past Recipients of the Spaulding Award:

- Mike Smith '87, for managing a mixed-use transit-oriented project located adjacent to the North Bethesda Metro Station in suburban Washington, D.C. (awarded 10/2/10 at the 25th Anniversary Celebration)
- Randy Nichols '89, for the development of Clayton Lane, a complex mixed-use development in Denver, CO. (awarded 10/1/04 during the Alumni Reunion Weekend).
- Patrick Campbell '87, for managing the development of a mixed-use "gateway" to the new Cuyahoga Valley Recreational Area (awarded 11/6/02 at the Fall Symposium).
- David Marvin '89, for developing a key site to revitalize the Centennial Olympic Park area of Atlanta (awarded 9/30/99 at 15th Anniversary Symposium Dinner).
- Patrick Kennedy '85, for developing affordable/market housing and mixed-use in no-growth Berkeley (awarded 12/1/97 at the Fall Members Meeting).
- William Browning '90, for founding the Green Development Services at the Rocky Mountain Institute (awarded 11/28/95 at the Fall Members Meeting).
- Robert Anthonyson '86, for managing the development of Boston's Post Office Square Park (awarded 11/15/94 at the 10th Anniversary Dinner).
- Sarah Abrams '85, for managing the rehab and creation of SRO units for the Cambridge YWCA (awarded 12/1/92 at the Fall Members Meeting).